

Good ol' days are here again

NOT TIMES ... Constable, Green, Moore and Brazel band member Brian Moore (pictured) will take the stage tomorrow night during the band's reunion

IT WILL be a trip down memory lane tomorrow night for the reunion of rock band Constable, Breen, Moore and Brazel.

The band will play its repertoire of 16 years ago - songs which were then chart hits which are now played as classics and standards.

The band consists of Kim Constable on bass, Chris Green on lead guitar, Brian Moore on drums and Chris Brazel on keyboards.

Known for high energy rock shows, four-part harmonies and the blistering guitar work of Chris Green, the band will perform from 8pm until late tomorrow night.

The reunion was instigated by Moore as a result of continually being stopped on the street and questioned about the band.

Moore lives in Uralla and sits in with local outfits.

The band regularly played at the Imperial Hotel, Teacher's College, Tattersall's Hotel and the old Moore Park Inn.

"Those were the good days, good people and good times," Moore said.

• The band will play at the Imperial Hotel from 8pm to-morrow night.
